Dreamed Future of Thailand

Prof. Dr. Suchart Thada-thamrongvech

Minister of Education

25 January 2012

I always dream to see Thai society giving an opportunity to the poor, majority of the country, to have honest jobs and income according to their knowledge and intelligence, to develop their occupations as dreamed, to access adequate resources, land, capitals, education, and technology, to sell their products in equitable competitive markets without influence and monopoly.

Every Thai family has sufficient income and money to support their children to learn more than in the past, making the children and youth dream and imagine of prosperous future which is very important.

I would like to see Thailand taking care of those living in difficulties by having health curing system, particularly for the poor, the disable, responsible by the government, so that they could have dignity and equitable opportunities to work like others.

Every Thai citizen, poor and well-off, has equity, rights and liberty, consideration in receiving global information. In socio-economic and political aspects, Thai people take part in expressing widely their views on national development. Narrow thinking and forcing people to be in old frames will be eliminated. Thailand will be developed in all sectors as those civilized countries.

I would like to see the law system and Thai society established with justice, care one another, not accuse with injustice, not murder with non-sense matters, so that our people will be happy like those in civilized countries.

The governance of Thailand must be released from power and influence of distinction, opportunists, mafia, those buying votes, old system full of patronage, influence and corruption

I would like to see Thailand governed with real democracy of people, by people and for people, one man one vote, making most people released from poverty and Thailand will be really progressive, prosperous and well-being.
